

Original spelling: Cwiootly, the old man blew the dust away from his chisel. He was very crinckled. The dust rose up into the air makeing a storm of dirt. He coodent see a thing. He rubbed the dirt from his eyes. When the clowd clered he sor a magic dinesor sceliton. When the old man tucht it, it came to life. I wunder wher the old man and the sceliton will gow ...

Spelling after parental interference: Quietly, the old man blew the dust away from his chisel. He was very crinkled. The dust rose up into the air making a storm of dirt. He couldn't see a thing. He rubbed the dirt from his eyes. When the cloud cleared he saw a magic dinosaur skeleton. When the old man touched it, it came to life. I wonder where the old man and the skeleton will go ...